- Please use with an Ordnance Survey Explorer Map.
- Wear sturdy footwear or wellingtons, being aware of uneven ground and fallen trees, especially near water and in wet weather.
- Adequate staff to student supervision ratios.
- Fields may contain farm animals.
- Long trousers are advised.
- Check the weather - waterproofs or hats and sun cream might be needed.
- Taking a drink with you is advisable.

Photo guide and route description

Come out of the school and turn left and walk to the top of the road. Cross over the adjoining road and turn right. Look out for a footpath sign ahead of you signalling left. Take that path to enter the parkland of East Court. Continue straight ahead, walking below the small car park. Pass a brick building on your left and carry on towards the woods ahead of you. Take the lower path which leads on to a log path. Follow this through the woods and emerge at a grassy glade. Walk through the glade to turn right at a wider path. Cross the footbridge over the gill stream. Follow the board walk and go up the steps and at a crossroads pass another glade on your left. Continue straight ahead through Ashplats wood. With houses visible through the trees ahead, turn right to follow the green arrow on a post. Follow the path downhill to walk down steps over a footbridge and up the other side. At the top turn left, this time heading in the opposite direction to the green arrow. Bear right to continue on the path, with houses on your left. Carry on until you emerge at a road. Look out for these key High Weald landscape features on the Welly Walk

Medieval Landscape
The High Weald looks much the same today as it did in the 14th century: gently rolling hills, irregular-shaped fields, small, scattered settlements and wooded areas. These features give the area its unique character.

Ancient Woodland
Almost one third of the High Weald is covered in woodland. Most of the High Weald’s woodlands are classed as ancient. This means they have existed since at least 1600AD. Most of Ashplats Wood is ancient.

Coppiced Woodland
Coppicing is when trees are cut down low to the ground allowing multiple stems to grow back. The stems are harvested to make products such as fencing stakes, charcoal and trugs. Hazel and Sweet Chestnut are trees that were commonly coppiced on the High Weald.

Ponds
Ponds are an important habitat for wildlife and the High Weald has lots of them. Many ponds have developed because of human activity such as quarrying.

Gill Streams
Steep-sided, wooded gills are formed where a stream has carved a deep channel through the clay and sandstone of a High Weald hillside. Plants growing on these slopes, such as ferns, liverworts and mosses form an important, fragile eco-system.

Ancient Routeways
Many paths in the High Weald have been used for centuries, some as far back as Neolithic times. This use by people, animals and later, carts, has worn away the soft ground to create deeply sunken sections. Many of these ancient sunken routeways are now roads, such as Blackwell Hollow in East Grinstead.

Local Building Materials
Traditionally buildings were made from materials in the local landscape. In the High Weald, that meant wood for timber-frames and weather-boarded buildings, clay bricks and tiles, and sandstone.
